American Revolution Essay
Mrs. Burr

Ladies and Gentlemen:

We have been studying the American Revolution and the trials and tribulations leading up to the decision to declare our independence from Britain. It is now your time to shine.

You are to pick one side Loyalist or Patriot. Once you pick your side make sure that all you discuss helps your cause.

You are to write a letter to King George of Britain,
Introduce yourself: What are the traits of a loyalist/patriot

Discussing the events leading up to the Declaration of Independence: French Indian War, the ACTS (at least 3) Massacres, Olive Branch Letter, Tea Parties, and the Proclamation of 1763. Depending on what side you are for defend them with a pro or con stance.

Write about the Declaration of Independence: Why was it treason or why was it a patriotic thing to do? How important was it?

Revolutionary War. What did the British do, how did the colonist fight? Describe at least two battles and why you think they were important. Don't leave out the French and Prussian officer that help the colonial militia, make sure to discuss the Hessians and The Treaty of Paris.

The war is over, what should the Patriots do? What stance (position) should King George and Britain take?

And FINALLY, what could have been done differently on both sides that might have prevented a war altogether.
